As an agent I am alarmed at the policies being canceled over the addition of a patio or some type of minor alteration. I thought the whole purpose of the TWIA is an insurance company of last resort? The voluntary market is not even close to competitive and some companies are just declining and not even offering a policy. It seems to me the surcharge program worked well so that properties were still insurable even at an increased premium. I think some arrangements need to be made. The houses I am speaking of are all Windstorm certified... Just been canceled for a minor addition such as a patio cover.

Thank you
